Hunters Await Season Opening On Nov. 20

Sportsmen are anxiously awaiting the opening of the general hunting season in Virginia, set for Monday, Nov. 20.

There are separate seasons for the hunting of certain species of game, but the hunters will be out bright and early Monday for the general open season.

Reports are in hand that game will be fairly plentiful this year. There were reports this week that many coveys of quail had been spotted. Turkeys may not be as plentiful as they were a few years back. The deer season is always eagerly awaited by local nimrods, and the sportsmen will be out in full force for this prime target.

Hunters are urged to respect the property of farmers and to guard against the chance of fires.

HUNTING SEASON

Prince Edward, Buckingham-Appomattox and Cumberland State Forests will be open to public hunting as in the past years, according to a game commission announcement. The season will correspond with the season prescribed for the rest of the county in which the state forest lies. A special state forest permit is required when hunting or trapping on state forest land in addition to a regular hunting license and the big game license required to hunt bear, deer or turkey.

The state forest permits may be obtained at forest headquarters, at court house in Buckingham, ...ck and Farmville, and at ...filling stations near the forests. The money from these permits is used by the Virginia Division of Forestry to finance game management practices on the state forests.

COMMENT ON SPORTS

FOOTBALL

BY PETE FRITCHIE

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The National Football League is still the big bear in professional football leagues and this year another exciting race is in progress.

What has helped football in recent years...professball— is the fact that a different team seems to come along every year or two, to take top honors. It was the Giants the Browns, the Colts, the Eagles ect., and as long as they swap the title around, interest will increase.

One of the big powers of recent years has been Baltimore, but this year the Colts are suffering from too many traded-away players, and from the natural retirement of others.

The Bears are red hot this year, which is good, and so are the Packers, a team that proves that a small city can support a big-time sports operation.

It will be interesting to see which of the NEL entries winds up with the title.

The saddest picture in the league, of course, is the Redskins picture. The Washington club was once the terror of the league but this year hasn't won a game, and the club's losing streak stretches back well into last season!

That means a new coach for Washington and the rumor is out that old Slingin', Sammy Baugh will come back to the capital city and be the manager in 1962.

Baugh was a great favorite in the capital when he used to throw TD passes and run 'em, too, if he had to, to bring victories to the Redskins. But that was a long, long time ago. Some of the kiddies don't even remember those old days.

Guests Influx Being Felt In Appomattox

Appomattox is experiencing the top year in its history for tourists —unless one mentions the April 9 weekend in 1865 when 115,000 Yankees and 28,000 Confederates gathered here.

With expanded facilities, local tourist businesses are just about filled each night. Virtually every night, every motor court in town puts up the "no vacancy" sign. It has been that way most of the season.

The very pleasant experience of having a large group of workers on an added "loop" on the Transa... Natural Gas Pipe Line here for a few weeks, has crowded most available accomodations.

One motor court operator stated this week that the combination of tourists, pipe line workers and regular route travelers, had kept his at capacity for many weeks.

This business is growing. One of the local motor courts is adding a new swimming pool.

Another is arranging to serve breakfasts and dinners.

In order to serve the pipe line workers, most of whom report for work at 6:00 A. M., most local eating establishments are opening soon after 4:30 A. M. The writer of this item, counted 47 men eating breakfast one morning recently at 4:...

In addition, many of the pipe line workers have their families with them, and many have house trailers. Others have furnished rooms in, for, in some cases, as 16 miles out of town.

As much as this pipeline group is welcomed, which surely they are, the point must remain evident that the tourist business is on the boom in Appomattox and is not likely to drop during the Civil War Centennial years. Attendance at famed McLean House and other shrines at Old Appomattox Court House is going to be well over the 100,000 figure this year. When Old Court House itself is rebuilt that will be another attraction for those who tour Virginia's many historic shrines.

Local people are to be commended for their spirit of Virginia hospitality in welcoming visitors and tourists.
